A THRILLING SHOT.

An Incident In a German Perform ance of "William Tell."

When a performance of the drame William Tell' was given at a certain German theater it was announced that C. C. Alvers of Pomona has pur-chased for the Standard Cypress family of good reputation and with company 8,000 acres of timber on whom he continued to live. All was company 8,000 acres of timber on whom he continued to live. All was should be protected by the tariff in tremely fine and that the scene where Tell's splendid marksmanship was made apparent would astonish every one. The audience waited as patiently as they could until that scene and were certainly astonished.

The scene arrived where Tell was to shoot the apple from his devoted son's head, and the apple and Tell's crossbow were connected by an invisible wire, along which the arrow was to speed to the target.

At the proper cue the arrow did speed haifway toward the apple, and there stuck, to all appearance in midslinke his bow to carry the arrow to its mark. The son of Tell looked very frightened and didn't know what was frightened and didn't know what was happening.

The apple, firmly fixed on his youthful cranium, was bobbing about, the sudlence was laughing, and the laugh burst into a roar when one of Gessler's guards took in the situation and, coming forward from his position at the side of young Tell, calmly gave the arrow a smart rap with his spear, when it speal on its way and buried itself in the apple on the boy's head.
